Meridian Systems has formally announced the commencement of the sunset process for Prolog WebSite.

Meridian Systems will discontinued selling this product as of March 24, 2010 at which time new licenses of Prolog WebSite will no long available for purchase. In order to continue to provide the best solutions for our customers and to continue to build on the success of Prolog Converge in the market, Meridian Systems has decided to focus resources on enhancements and extensions to Prolog Converge and Prolog Manager.

Meridian values your commitment as ongoing customers and will continue to honor existing support contracts and renewals that have been sent to customers. To allow customers the time to make the decision to migrate to Prolog Converge from Prolog WebSite.

Meridian will extend support contracts that are up for renewal beginning July 2010 for a term of one year.

Kelar Pacific can work with you to provide more information on our solution offerings that best fit your business needs.

Please note that support contracts up for renewal from July 1 to September 30, 2010 will only be renewed for a term of one year. However, Prolog WebSite support contracts up for renewal after October 1, 2010 will not be extended beyond their current expiration date. Meridian will continue to provide support and address major defects in this product until all active support contracts have expired. If you have any question about support, please refer to the Technical Resources section on Meridian Systems Support link Website

Smart Buyer's Guide to Project Management Solutions

Today's buyer of construction project management or infrastructure lifecycle management solutions must react to a number of new market demands and economic realities. Commercial building owners, public agencies, construction and engineering firms are seeking out excellent operational processes to navigate through intense competition, lower profit margins and no tolerance for waste. This in-depth guide is specifically designed to provide organizations with the decision making tools needed for a successful software selection. Access the guide now

New Opportunities for Green Design

As calls for reducing greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions resound globally, the architecture, engineering, and construction (AEC) industry must answer. After all, buildings-not vehicles or industry-are the leading source of GHG emissions, a fact not known to 95 percent of Americans. While the collapsing housing market precludes new green building projects in most countries, government stimulus money has revitalized green retrofit and renovation opportunities in the United States and beyond. In this time of shifting priorities and industry-wide transformation, Autodesk recognizes that the AEC industry must gird itself for tectonic changes.

Rehabra Cadabra: Road Rehabilitation Made Easy Using Civil 3D 2011

June 3, 2010
10:00am-11:00am

Description:

Using a real-world example of a road rehabilitation project, we will unleash the "magic" of AutoCAD Civil 3D subassemblies to increase productivity and help reduce errors and omissions. We will create a Corridor model that will start with an existing road surface, and then learn how to improve that surface by holding to certain existing features and/or holding certain cross fall. We'll explore design and visualization techniques to aid in the iterative nature of type of design.

Topics covered:

- Advanced Corridor Modeling
- Design Visualization techniques
- Creating cross-sections with dynamically linked annotated labels
- Iterative design utilizing the corridor model and proposed vertical alignments
- Earthwork and material volume

The Impact of Project Management Technology on Capital Building and Infrastructure Projects

June 16, 2010
10:00am-11:00am

Description:

Project-based businesses face a variety of challenges in driving profitable business. While these challenges are as diverse as the products and services offered, all strive for a common goal of delivering projects on time and under budget. For the industries where capital building and infrastructure projects are their business, on time and under budget equates to improved project and enterprise profitability.

In a recent in-depth Analyst Insight, Aberdeen found that the implementation of project management applications has a real and significant impact on the ability to deliver projects on time and within budget. Join us for this 1-hour webinar where we will discuss the findings of this important study, including how:

- 83% delivered Projects early or on time
- 89% were delivered within budget
- 15% improvement in project profitability year over year

Presenter: Cindy Jutras, VP and Research Fellow, Aberdeen Group

Facilitator and Technology Overview: Marc Kirchman, Director, Industry Marketing, Meridian Systems
